

“Cities” Puzzle Activity –DO NOT DISTRIBUTE IN ADVANCE:

Make 1 copy for each group of 6, cut into 6 sections and place all 6 sections in one envelope. Give all the envelopes you have prepared to Rich. Each group of 6 will receive one envelope with 6 clues from Rich on the day of presentation.

LARGEST CITIES IN 1990	LARGEST CITIES IN 1990
Bombay (Mumbai), with 11.9 million, was larger than both Seoul and Buenos Aires, but smaller than Shanghai. Mexico City had the largest population in the world. Problem: Arrange the 10 cities in order from the largest population to the smallest.	Seoul, home of the 1988 Summer Olympics, was smaller than Tokyo or New York, but larger than Rio de Janeiro. Shanghai and Calcutta both had populations of about 12 million and were in the middle of the list.
LARGEST CITIES IN 1990	LARGEST CITIES IN 1990
The five cities with the largest populations were Tokyo, Calcutta, Mexico City, Sao Paulo, and New York, but not necessarily in that order. Buenos Aires, at 11.7 million, had about 200,000 more people than Seoul.	There are three cities between Sao Paulo and Shanghai in size. New York had the largest population in 1970, but by 1990, three cities surpassed New York's population.
LARGEST CITIES IN 1990	LARGEST CITIES IN 1990
The five least populous cities in this problem are Bombay, Seoul, Rio de Janeiro, Shanghai, and Buenos Aires, but not necessarily in that order.	The only two cities in 1990 with a greater population than Tokyo were Mexico City and Sao Paulo. In 1990, Rio de Janeiro was the 10th largest city in the world.